

53 Radula Tooth V4

Start on a sloping shelf. Traverse right across the face and then pull the lip using seam holds. (Mike Chapman, 2009)

This problem is on the trail that traverses the base of the Grand Wall. Hike up to the base, turn right and then walk to a triangular-shaped face that's seen just before you reach the edge of the rockfall debris zone.

54 Muff Chest V3 ★★★

Climb the right-leaning arête on the downhill face of the boulder from a standing start, palming and smearing the entire way. (Stu Worrall, Andrew Boyd, Tim Doyle, 1997)

A small cluster of large boulders (The Star Destroyers) is found on the edge of the 2021 rockfall debris. They were developed before this event and the following problems remain intact despite the impact on the immediate environment. To approach, traverse beneath The Snail and pick up a faint trail that heads diagonally up the slope for 75 m or so. As you near the boulders, the route becomes partially obscured by blowdown and rock debris.

55 Jack's Corner V5 ★

Start in the corner and crank up the right-hand face to reach the boulder's upper arête. (Jack Fieldhouse, 2018)

56 A Series of Unfortunate Events V10 ★★★★★

Jump start to a large flat edge in the middle of the face. Shorter climbers may have to stack pads since the edge is quite high. Sidepull features above lead to a scoop in the upper slab and a very airy finish slightly to the right. One of the best hard highballs in town! The overhanging arête to the left of this line will produce yet another brilliant highball when complete. The feature is tall and striking and has just enough features to be workable. It's been top roped, but not bouldered. (Jeremy Smith, 2018)

57 The Sail V11 ★★★

Climb along the right side of the low curved boulder, starting with a good horizontal pinch. Shorter climbers may have to stack pads to start. Name for the boulder's shape, which is wild. (Ben Harnden, 2020)

Scramble up the debris right of The Sail to get onto the upper platform where the Low Lows block is perched. Scramble a bit higher to reach Alderaan Roof, the small boulder split by a crack.

58 Low Lows V2 ★★★

Start seated very low matched on a big pinch. Go to the lip and slightly right to top out. (Jeremy Smith, 2020)

59 Alderaan Roof V2 ★

This problem is on a small boulder sitting on top of the right side of the Unfortunate Events face. Start as far back under the roof as you can and climb the short, widening roof crack to the top. (Jeremy Smith, Andrew Boyd, 2020)

Stella Marchisio on Easy in an Easy Chair (V4). Photo: Christian Core

A SERIES OF...

THE SAIL