

SUPERFLY

This area is immensely popular and is located just inside the forest off the gravel roadbed. There are only a few boulders, but they are quite large and extremely well traveled. Superfly (V4) might be one of the most climbed problems in all of Squamish.

Approach: Take the Grand Wall trail, which leads uphill from the gravel roadbed. A BC Parks signboard will immediately come into view and the slabby west face of the Superfly boulder can be clearly seen just beyond.

1 The Contortionist V9 ★

You'll need to be a contortionist to start this awkward problem. Find edges way under the tree and traverse left to finish on Superfly. A broken hold has upped the original difficulty of this problem. (Jack Fieldhouse, 1999)

2 Superfly V4 TOP 100

This is an incredibly popular problem. Start seated in the middle of the overhang with an undercling for your left hand and a flake for your right. Climb the overhang without using the left arête. (Peter Michaux, 1996)

3 Superfly Lunge V4 ★★★

Start as for Superfly. Crank to the poor left crimp and out right to the incut edge. Leave room to match and lunge directly up to the huge jug on the lip. (Unknown)

4 Stu's Fly V2 ★★★

Start low; climb the arête's right side. (Stu Worrall, 1996)

5 Superfly Slab V0 ★★★

Climb the obvious cleaned streak. (Jack Fieldhouse, 2001)

6 Baba Hari Dass V7 ★★★
