

WHISTLER HIKING – Updates posted May 16th, 2024

Disclaimer: Forest service road conditions change frequently in this region due to storms, fallen trees, washouts and logging activities. The best practice for planning hiking trips that require logging road access is to consult multiple sources to determine the current condition of the road before you go. Sources such as the BC Parks website, various Facebook groups (South Coast Touring, SWBC Peakbaggers), AllTrails comments and the Road Conditions in the Sea to Sky District government webpage all provide a good starting point. Posting a question in a Facebook group can often yield good information on current conditions from other users.

The following, recently-developed website provides current FSR updates and will likely become an excellent resource for backcountry users. Pan and zoom to find the road you hope to drive: <https://roadstatus.searchthesummits.com/>)
